

April 4, 2008

Dear Parents and Guardians,

We continue to rotate with the kids in Mrs. Susi's class twice a week for a half hour block. This week I read a story by Charlotte Pomerantz called "The Half- Birthday Party" to introduce the concept of fractions. The children drew a whole object, cut it out and cut it in half. They then wrote the fraction in each part. Then they wrote a few sentences about it. This will be made into a class book! Mrs. Susi read a story about time and had the children assembling a clock with brads to attach the hands. We are practicing telling time to the hour and half past.

During writing the children work in their new April journal and also continue to write back and forth with me in their personal journals. I'm seeing more detail in their writing and compound sentences! They have a lot to say!

Report cards go home next week!

I hope you all have a wonderful weekend! Keep reading!

Sincerely,
Carolyn Wentworth
